The Why

Ida dreamt of becoming a pediatric nurse. She felt happy when she could help the younger kids in her sub-Saharan village feel better and happier. Unfortunately, Ida got diagnosed with surgically curable liver cancer when she was eleven. Curable, except for those who could not afford surgery, such as Ida and her family. After seven long years of agony, Ida died one week before her eighteenth birthday. Not only did Ida lose her life, and her family lost their precious daughter/granddaughter/sister/cousin — we all lost a beautiful person who could have offered love and healing to others, had her family been able to afford the surgery.

The International Childhood Cancer Foundation (ICCC) is to help children like Ida heal from their cancer and continue bringing light into this world.

Our Mission

To help impoverished children with cancer worldwide heal both physically and emotionally. ICCC provides resources, funding, education, and coaching programs for each child and his/her parents, to help them beat cancer and THRIVE with ease and joy.

Please join ICCC and help more light to shine forth onto humanity.
